

I'm honored to be your voice in Congress - and I'm humbled and grateful for the trust and faith you've had in me and my efforts to advocate for you each and every day.

I also appreciate the support I've received from local and state elected officials. Working together we've helped protect and expand health care, developed flood control projects, brought resources for veterans and started transportation initiatives. I've backed measures to support our agricultural economy, secure help for small businesses and get resources to local law enforcement and firefighters. The protection and safety of each of you is foremost in my mind. And I've always put people over politics.

Listening to the people, I'm focused on our quality of life: bringing down the cost of living, education, affordable health care, immigration reform, housing that regular folks can afford, transportation, protecting our environment, help for those in need, economic development and support for agriculture.

But I've heard your concern about extremism. I served on the Committee to investigate the January 6th attack on the United States Capitol. I learned the threat to our democracy is real. And I've gained some insights on how to defend democracy. Without our democracy we won't succeed with any of the other challenges we face.

Because this is such a critical time for our democracy, I offer myself to you for re-election to Congress. If I'm honored by your vote I will listen to you and stand up for you. Together we'll secure America's future.
